A Brief History of Jerusalem
From the Earliest Settlement to the Destruction of the City in AD 70
by Klaus Bieberstein

Jerusalem has been the site of some of the most intensive archaeological research. The most important discoveries were made in the course of excavations conducted by Kathleen Kenyon, Benjamin Mazar, Nahman Avigad and Yigal Shiloh. This volume creates a synthesis of the latest findings in order to present a new paradigm for discussion.

Games and Sanctuaries in Ancient Greece
Olympia, Delphi, Isthmia, Nemea, Athens
Second Edition
by Panos Valavanis

This volume celebrates the athletes, the games, the sanctuaries, the cities and the inspiring spirit of the ancient Greeks over a span of a millennium and a half, from the earliest mentions of athletics in Homer's Iliad into the late antique periods.

Regional Approaches to Society and Complexity
edited by Alex R. Knodell and Thomas P. Leppard

This volume considers regional approaches to social complexity from a variety of perspectives and at a global scale. John F. Cherry has been a key figure in regional-scale inquiry and broader disciplinary interfaces throughout his career, producing, mentoring, and inspiring a remarkably diverse body of work, which nevertheless remains oriented around this central theme. While Cherry's work is the inspiration for this volume and the papers within it, this should not be seen as a traditional festschrift, or piecemeal homage to the honorand's career. Rather, it aims to explore this core concern of regional approaches to society and complexity in comparative perspective, first in the Aegean, then branching out to the wider Mediterranean, New World, and finally reflecting on relevant issues of concern to all archaeologists working at levels above the site.

From the Mountains to the Sea
The Roman Colonisation and Urbanisation of Central Adriatic Italy
by Frank Vermeulen
This volume proposes an innovative synthesis of recent archaeological research on town formation and urbanization, and connected Roman colonization, of the central part of Adriatic Italy. During the past decade much archaeological fieldwork has been conducted on urban sites in this area, and it is now high time for a geographical and historical contextualization of the more than 40 Roman urban sites known, based on a careful review of the scholarly tradition and the bringing together of much new, often unpublished or preliminary published, field data.

Benfactors, Kings, Rulers Studies on the Seleukid Empire between East and West
by David Engels
In order to explore whether, and the extent to which, the Seleukids can be considered heirs to the Achaimenids and precursors of the Parthians, and to what extent they simply ‘imported’ cultural and political behavioral patterns developed in Greece and Macedonia, the studies adopt a decidedly interdisciplinary and diachronic approach.

City Boundaries and Urban Development in Roman Italy
by Saskia Stevens
In Roman cities, boundaries were an important way of defining spaces. Their significance was mediated by specific cultural rules. This book takes a new approach to Roman urban boundaries and city planning by exploring the dynamics and interaction between urban development processes, city limits and the law. As a result, Roman attitudes towards the symbolic meanings of civic boundaries can be better understood.

De l’occupation postpalatiale à la cité-état grecque Le cas du Mirambello (Crête)
by Florence Gaignerot-Driessen Using Crete as a case study, this text discusses both why and when the Aegean communities may have moved from a centralized state system, that of the Mycenaean palaces, to the Greek system of city-states. This text contains numerous inventories from archaeological sites with maps, plans, drawings, and photographs. French text.

New Religious Texts from Lydia
by Hasan Malay and Georg Petzl
The ancient area of Lydia has yielded a particularly rich epigraphical harvest of Greek-Roman Antiquity. Inscriptions were found on the surface of ancient sites, during archaeological excavations or discovered in the course of construction work. This volume presents more than 200 unpublished inscriptions that refer to religious life. The earliest ones belong to the Hellenistic period, the majority of them were written in the Roman Imperial period, and the latest ones date from Christian Antiquity.

Aegyptiaca aus Al Mina und Tarsos im Verband des nordsyrisch-südostanatolischen Raumes
by Günther Höbl
The diffusion of Egyptian type objects throughout the Mediterranean is a chief research topic of the author. Preceded by summarizing presentations of Aegyptiaca from other regions, this volume presents mainly unpublished amulets and scarabs from Al Mina. Extensive comments with comparative material, along with the photographic documentation, elucidate the single pieces. These come from the excavations undertaken by Sir Leonard Woolley in 1936/37. Discipuli dona ferentes Glimpses of Byzantium in Honour of Marlia Mundell Mango edited by Tassos Papacostas and Maria Parani In recognition and celebration of the achievements of Marlia (Maria Cordelia) Mundell Mango as a researcher and as a teacher, twelve of her doctoral students offer her this volume of collected essays, showcasing recent research in Byzantine archaeology and material culture studies. The essays are divided into three sections: Studies on Byzantine economy, shipping, road networks, production and trade from Late Antiquity down to the time of the Crusades; facets of the material culture and the lifestyle especially of the upper social strata in the Byzantine Empire; and aspects of artistic creativity in the lands of the empire.

The Diversity of Classical Archaeology edited by Achim Lichtenberger and Rubina Raja Themes presented in this volume include Greek and Roman portraiture and sculpture, iconography, epigraphy, archaeology, numismatics, the Mediterranean, settlement patterns, landscape archaeology, historiography, and urban archaeology. Additionally, essays on topics such as the early Islamic period and portraiture in the Near East serve to broaden the themes encompassed by this work, and demonstrate the importance of interdisciplinary knowledge in the field. The multi-disciplinary essays thus represent the status quo of classical archaeology, as well as tracing both how the discipline has developed over time and how it should progress in the future.

New Cities in Late Antiquity Documents and Archaeology edited by Efthymios Rizos and Alessandra Ricci
This volume, deriving from a workshop organized in Istanbul in November 2013, brings together studies by archaeologists working on sites that were founded or developed as urban centers during Late Antiquity (3rd to 7th century AD). On the base of case studies and synthetic approaches it is attempted to draw a comprehensive picture of the state of research and a theoretical discussion on the motives and characteristics of city-building and settlement development in Late Antiquity.

The Cistercian Monastery of Zaraka, Greece edited by Sheila Campbell
During the Frankish Crusader period, Cistercian monks built and developed the monastery of Zaraka in Greece for approximately forty years and were followed first by squatters, then by a seventeenth-century cemetery. The goal of this study has been to identify where the monks came from, how they lived, and why they left so suddenly. 488p (Medieval Institute Publications, October 2017, Monastic Life 2) hardcover, 9781580442442, $89.00. Ephesians and Artemis
The Cult of the Great Goddess of Ephesus as the Epistle’s Context
by Michael Immendörfer
In this study, Michael Immendörfer examines the relationship between the New Testament letter to the Ephesians and the ancient city of Ephesus, which had the great Artemis as its goddess. He seeks to make a contribution to the discussion on the extent to which conclusions can be drawn concerning the local-historical explanation of New Testament epistles by viewing the latter through the lens of Greco-Roman cultic practices. Thus the contents of Ephesians are compared with the abundantly available archaeological and epigraphical sources of the Asia Minor metropolis. This endeavor reveals that the letter contains numerous unequivocal references to the cult of Artemis, a nexus suggesting that the author was very familiar with the historical background of ancient Ephesus and contextualized his letter accordingly for the intended readers who lived in this particular cultic environment. 469p (Mohr Siebeck, June 2017, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament, 2. Petras, Siteia: The Pre- and Proto-Palatial Cemetery in Context Acts of a Two-day Conference Held at the Danish Institute at Athens, 14–15 February 2015 edited by Metaxia Tsipopoulou
The second conference report on the archaeological site of Petras, Siteia concerns the progress of research conducted about the very important and extensive cemetery of the Pre- and Proto-palatial periods in eastern Crete—one of very few excavations started in Crete in the 21st century. An international group of specialists present and discuss various aspects of the remains of the large, un plundered cemetery and the adjacent settlements traces and in contextualizing the cemetery they try to understand it in the historical, economic and political framework of Pre- and Proto-palatial Crete in general, and Eastern Crete in particular. 448p (Aarhus University Press, February 2017, Monographs of the Danish Institute at Athens 21) hardcover, 9788771841572, $80.00. Cliff Shelters and Hiding Complexes in the Galilee during the Early Roman Period by Yinon Shviti‘el
This study relies on accounts in two of Flavius Josephus’ works, The Jewish War and The Life of Josephus, where Josephus records that the Jewish population in Galilee prepared two types of underground chambers for use in times of adversity. The book details the evidence and finds from the different forms of hiding complexes discovered beneath the remains of many of the Jewish settlements in Galilee chronicled by Flavius Josephus. Research into these complexes has revealed their resemblance to similar hiding systems discovered in the Judean plain. The book is copiously illustrated with plans, figures and photographs of both types of underground chambers and it discusses their connection with the desperate times faced by the Jews in Galilee throughout the entire Early Roman period, particularly during the Great Revolt. 300p (Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, March 2018, Novum Testamentum et Orbis Antiquus. Morro de Mezquitilla Die phönizisch-punische Niederlassung an der Algarrobo-Mündung by Hermanfrid Schubart and Gerta Maass-Lindemann
This volume presents the archaeological discoveries from the excavation of Morro de Mezquitilla, which took place under H. Schubart chiefly between 1981 and 1982. The archaeological site contains the earliest evidence of the Phoenician presence on the Iberian Peninsula. Because of the richness of the archaeological finds and the growth of the settlement up to the period of the Roman Republics, Morro de Mezquitilla is in an important site for understanding Phoenician westward expansion and the development of the western Phoenician world in the period from the 9th century BCE onward. German text. 854p, 4 col & 1866 b/w illus, 161 pls, 27 maps, 27 fold-out maps (Dr. Ludwig Reichert Verlag, April 2017, Madrider Beiträge 33) hardcover, 9783954900718, $330.00. Special Offer $264.00

Attisch rotfigurige und schwarzgefärbbte Lekanides by Eva Diana Breitfeld-von Eckstedt
The subject of the investigation presented here is the vase shape conventionally known as lekanis. The cultural-historical significance of this vase in the 5th and 4th century BC is analyzed under the following aspects: function, shape development, workshops, iconography, and dissemination. The shape of this vessel remained largely unchanged, and it served as a container for cosmetics as well as tableware. By recording more than 1000 lekanides and investigating the development of the vessel shape, its iconography, and its export, results offering a long-term basis for future research were obtained. Most of the material originates in the 4th century BC, a period that in the last few years has once again received more attention in the research of ceramics. German text. 304p, b/w illus, 40 pls (Dr. Ludwig Reichert Verlag, February 2017) hardcover, 9783954902262, $165.00. Special Offer $132.00

Le théâtre d’Aphrodisias
Les structures scéniques
by Nathalie Chaisemartin and Dinu Theodorescu
This is the full publication of the stage structures of the theater in the Carian city of Aphrodisias. Dedicated by C. Julius Zoilos, freedman of Octavian, between 30 and 27 BC, the theater’s original stage building was preserved unmodified until its collapse in the seventh century. Almost all of the elements of the stage façade were buried under a Byzantine fort and the modern village of Geýre. No other theater stage façade of the first century BC is preserved in the Mediterranean world. In 1988 and 1989 several sondages around the stage building and in the arena confirmed the chronology of the monument’s phases. In the middle imperial period, the theatre was progressively transformed to accommodate gladiatorial games and wild beast hunts. The recording of all the architectural elements permitted a full restoration of the stage façade, its innovative design, and its original decoration. Cities of the Apocalypse
by Elzbieta Jastrzebowska
This book constitutes a synthesis on the knowledge about the material vestiges of seven cities of the Apocalypse: Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia and Laodicea from the period of composition of the last book of New Testament, i.e. from 50 to 150 AD. This is an attempt to answer why the author of the Apocalypse addressed his letter to these particular seven cities in the time of their great prosperity. This volume presents and extensive archaeological and topographical commentary and an exhaustive survey of the respective scholarly discussion, enriched with personal observations, the most recent literature, and the latest photographs taken in situ by the author.

Ercolano 1927–1961
L’impresa archeologica di Amedeo Maiuri e l’esperimento della città museo edited by Domenico Camardo and Mario Notomista

This volume celebrates the 90th anniversary of the launch of excavations at Herculaneum by Amedeo Maiuri. Thanks to the Herculaneum Conservation Project which has been studying and conserving the archaeological site for over a decade, the authors have come into daily contact with the results of Maiuri’s extraordinary legacy of excavation and restoration that he carried out from 1927 to 1961. His ambitious dream to uncover the ancient Roman city was fulfilled by organizing every step of site works from excavation to restoration efficiently, through to the on-site display of the most significant finds. The volume contains an extraordinary selection of over 130 archive photographs, most of them previously unpublished. L’arte di vivere al tempo di Roma
I luoghi del tempo nelle domus di Pompei edited by Simona Rafanelli

This book is derived from the exhibition on Pompeii and the Vesuvius area that was held at the Vetulonia Archaeological Museum. It provides an opportunity for scholars and history enthusiasts to learn about the sublime traits of Romanism impressed in the face of Pompeii of 79 AD. This text presents a comparison of two communities, Etruscan Vetulonia and Roman Pompeii, who share the same fate: that of perishing by the hand of an unexpected concealed destiny. Mercati di Traiano
by Marco Bianchini and Massimo Vitti Trajan's markets are of extraordinary importance to our knowledge of Roman architecture. They are one of the best-preserved ancient building complexes, including several factory buildings where the wall structure has been preserved to roof height. They can be considered as a true gem for the study and analysis of ancient building materials and techniques, as they offer a varied set of technological solutions applied to foundations, raised walls, vaults, and furnishings. The design of their architectural space also reveals innovations, and the buildings anticipate a number of trends that became commonplace in subsequent decades. This volume is the result of many years of documentation, study, and research conducted by the authors in the context of the many initiatives to protect and enhance the monument. Their commitment led to this first monograph, which provides an analytical reading of the building complex in a complete and organic way and provides founded answers about their chronology, construction history, intended use, architectural and urban aspects, and differences between the original land use and the final design of Trajan's project. The Mystic Cave
A History of the Nativity Church at Bethlehem
by Michele Bacci
This book offers a general description of the vicissitudes of the holy site since its very beginnings in Late Antiquity until the present times, with a special focus on the ways in which the complex relationship between the underground holy site, the Nativity cave housing the very spot of Christ's birthplace and the manger, and the sumptuously decorated upper church came to be variously negotiated in the course of time by means of different forms of mise-en-scène. The book is accompanied by a rich apparatus of colour illustrations, plans, and a bibliographic annex.

Ein Beitrag zur Umwelt- und Kulturgeschichte einer oberägyptischen Stadt von der pharaonischen Spät- bis in die Mameluckenzeit
by Johanna Sigl
More than 2500 years ago, opposite the Pharaonic town of Elephantine on the island of the same name, the town of Syene, predecessor of today’s Assuan, came into existence. The partner towns formed the gateway to Nubia and Central Africa. This presentation of the archaeozoological material according to the identified species is accompanied by a detailed description of the methodological background as well as by comparisons with faunal studies all over Egypt from Pharaonic times to the Modern Age. German text.

Le Rocher des Aures et l’âge du Bronze autour de la Lance edited by Jean-Claude Mège-Bastet, Janick Roussel-Ode and Stephan G. Schmid
This volume explores the archaeological history of the Rocher des Aures. By analyzing it in its regional context, it argues that the period following the Bronze Age was the most important occupation of the site. From this it can be seen that a rich and diversified civilization had already developed at the beginning of the first millennium BC, preceding the oppidum of the Iron Age. French text.

Häfen im 1. Millennium AD Standortbedingungen, Entwicklungsmodelle und ökonomische Vernetzung
by Sven Kalmring and Lukas Werther
This volume offers 13 studies of ports as an interface between water and land routes from various scholarly perspectives. They span a geographically wide area from the North Atlantic to the eastern Mediterranean Sea. The findings from these investigations are relevant to the field of interdisciplinary geo-archaeological and geophysical research, text-based analysis, and transregional studies. German text.

Der Diskus von Phaistos Grundlagen seiner Entzifferung
by Thomas Berres
This volume attempts a fundamental assessment of the Phaistos Disc. To accomplish this task, a broad basis of information has been consulted and includes the writing and language conditions in early Crete, the inscription on the Arkalochori Axe, whose inscriptions are closest to the disc’s, and verses related to Crete in the Iliad and Odyssey. The study also discusses the nature and conditions for the current state of frustration in deciphering the disc. German text.
